Introduction

The publication collects contributions by the a comparison among different European lecturers in the series of conference Public spaces cities, each one recently interested by the and shared places. Architectural projects for the European phenomenon of the urban transformation, cities created by Guya Bertelli and coordinated even if with different level and measure. In by Pasquale Mei. The symposium was sponsored the first day the focus was on Barcelona and by the Department of Architecture and Seville: cities that hosted, twenty years ago, Urban studies (DASU) and the conferences two great events such as the Olympic Games have been organized in 2012 and 2013 at Politecnico di Milano, Campus Leonardo, and been focused in the second day: they looked at Arata Campus, in the Territorial Campus at the design of open spaces as an opportunity of Piacenza. The debates were part of the four working days; each one was dedicated to an interesting comparison between two European cities. The contributions of the lecturers - dedicated to Hamburg and Potsdam as Enric Massip Bosh and Carlos Garcia Vazquez; Hervé Dubois and Gill Novarina; Stefan Vieths and Michele Giovanni Caja; Arqués Francisco Soler and Maria Vittoria Capitanucci - are divided into four different chapters. Each chapter presents the intervention of a specific day and is opened by the introduction, and followed by a conclusion by the coordinator of the same day. The four chapters are introduced by a forward by Gabriele Pasqui and essays by Guya Bertelli, Michele Roda and Pasquale Mei, reflecting a critical view on the role and the meaning of the public space in the contemporary city. The topic elaborated in the series of lectures is linked with the re-reading of the current planning strategies of the public space through

The architectural examples presented by the lecturers during the series of conferences have built a potential abacus of new urban forms that are going to transform the public places of the city and the lives of its inhabitants, triggering new cycles of use and sharing. Among them: the Forum Square with the Telefónica Tower, as a new iconic element of the Barcelona skyline, located at the end of Diagonal; the Metropol Parasol in Seville, designed by the German architect Jürgen Mayer, that works not only as a cover for the Encarnacion square, but it also becomes simultaneously an elevated share public soil. The mirror canopy of Norman Foster on the square that is outside of the old port of Marseille and its forms of use and sharing. A critical defines an idea of lively public space taking in consideration the game of reflections of the urban transformations occurring in Europe soil and the water; the new harbour intended as the dock basin square of new sustainable neighborhood in Lyon, on the Presqu'île. Herzog & de Meuron's Philharmonic hall in Hamburg.

The goal of the symposium, and of this publication that elaborates the contents, was to rebuild an updated reflection on the public space in the contemporary European city square that is outside of the old port of Marseille and its forms of use and sharing. A critical defines an idea of lively public space taking in reading that have as a background the large consideration the game of reflections of the urban transformations occurring in Europe soil and the water; the new harbour intended as the dock basin square of new sustainable neighborhood in Lyon, on the Presqu'île. Herzog & de Meuron's Philharmonic hall in Hamburg, sharing, a new kind of neo-realism - that lead to a public building dedicated to the music that defines a new relationship between the city and the port; the reconstruction following the rule "how it was and where it was" in Potsdam on the external façades of the old city blocks. And the public space and the private space? What at the end the architecture of the bridge that will be, in the future, the limit that identifies Dominique Perrault transformed, using the cutting method, in a gateway to the new park of the Madrid Rio; the new Gae Aulenti Square with its tall buildings of Porta Nuova new development area, which is an icon able to convey on a global scale the image of Milan for the Expo.

The topic of "public spaces and shared places" has been presented by the lectures, as a place of collective and symbolic representation of the contemporary civilization, but has been also approached through topics that are directly related to the development of new forms of contemporary, social, temporary living and use of its forms. A specific condition determined by the economical crisis in Europe, that has defined a decline of development, in the past linked to technological progress inherited by the nineteenth century positivist culture.
